

Church bells ring out, our heads are bowed,
 Soft rain provides a gentle shroud;
 Familiar words sound crisp and clear,
 And all the people gathered here
 Respond with their remembrance,
 In spoken, solemn reverence...

So many names engraved in stone,
 Yet, scanning them, I feel alone,
 Silent among the shuffling crowd,
 Grief stricken, but immensely proud
 Of such brave men, who, freed from pain
 In Heaven's light, we'll meet again...
