Called by God Supported by you

Around the world, salvationists are not only sharing the gospel but living it out too. Working in communities, they get to know vulnerable people and their difficulties. With this understanding, they can help make the biggest impact and transform lives.

They dedicate themselves to God and to service, but they also need practical support to carry out their work most effectively. Your Self-Denial gift will help train officers, and make sure salvationists have the resources and infrastructure they need.
